

Changes in the management team of SBB Cargo International AG

Edmund Prokschi, Head of Sales and Product Development at SBB Cargo International, has decided of his own accord to end his professional career in 2017 so that he can devote himself to his family and private activities.

As of 1 January 2017, Pascal Jenni will take charge of Sales and Product Development at SBB Cargo International as a member of the company's Executive Board. A native of Basel, Pascal Jenni studied politics and economics in Bern and Stockholm and has many years of in-depth experience of management positions in a range of leading transport-sector companies. In addition to German, he speaks French, Italian, English and Swedish.

Pascal Jenni has worked for SBB Cargo International as a Key Account Manager since 1 October 2012, and has built up a broad network in the field of intermodal transport. His strengths in negotiating and developing client portfolios and his strategic orientation make him ideal for the new post. Owing to his experience and excellent track record, Pascal Jenni is ready for his next career move. The Board of Directors shares this view and has confirmed the decision. He will be taking over from Edmund Prokschi as of next year. We are delighted that Pascal Jenni is joining our company's Executive Board and wish him all the best and every success with this new challenge.

As of 1 January 2017, Edmund Prokschi will handle corporate development projects on the Executive Board on behalf of the CEO and, until he leaves the company, ensure a smooth handover to his successor.
